Between the fall of 1953 and September 1954, there was regular air activity by silvery jet aircraft with considerably swept-back wings over Rosengarth (53°54' N/ 20°20' 30 E), 20 km northwest of ~~Wormditt~~. The aircraft flew at a noticeably high speed making a whining sound. Up to 9 aircraft were simultaneously aloft. The aircraft mostly approached from the west over the Wals River, crossed over Rosengarth and then headed east. Some jet aircraft also approached from the east heading west. Air activity was usually conducted during daytime and in favorable weather. The flight altitude changed. Some aircraft crossed at low level, others at a very high altitude. Individual flights were seldom made and formation flying in good discipline, mostly in V-formation was usually observed. The formations consisted of 2, 6, and repeatedly of 9 aircraft. Parachuting or air crashes were never observed. the jet aircraft came from ~~Orneta (Wormditt)~~ (54°07' N/20°08' E).

Comment. According to available information, a Polish fighter regiment equipped with MIG-15s was stationed at Wormditt airfield during the period under review. This regiment had been activated approximately in 1952/1953. The aircraft observed probably belonged to this regiment.
